aboard the Deutschland liner he took

MISSING GIRL HAS DISAPPEARED AFTER GETTING BACK HOME*Mary Aoya is Found at Leechburg. But She Does Not Stay Long.*MONEY AND JEWELS RECOVERED*She Runs Off After Mother Threatens to Send Her to Reform School on the Ground of Incurability; Priest Will Not Send After Her.

Mary Aoya, who ran away from home on July 7, was brought back to Connellsville yesterday by her mother, and disappeared again last night. The jewelry and money which she took with her on her first escape has been recovered.

The girl is 15 years old and her mother is housekeeper for Rev. Father Stephen Ulrich, pastor of the Slavish Catholic Church on the West Side.
Longing to see New York or some other big city, she left home on the night of July 7, taking with her jewelry and money valued at over $100 belonging to the priest.

The girl's mother and the priest at once instituted a search for her, and learned that she had left for Uniontown on a morning car. Some friends were notified and two days ago they furnished a clue, which Mrs. Aoya at once began to follow up. She left Connellsville and yesterday returned with the girl, whom she had found in Leechburg, Pa. Leechburg is about 34 miles from Pittsburgh.

The girl seemed satisfied to come home, Rev. Ulrich says, until Mrs. Aoya began to talk of sending her to a reform school. At this she balked.
When the mother left her alone for a few minutes last night, Mary decided to leave again. It was early yesterday evening that she departed. Where she has gone this time, Rev. Ulrich has no idea. He says he will make no attempt to trace her this time.

"She is incorrigible," he says, "and it would be useless to bring her back home. We have heard nothing of her up to this time."

The Aoya girl had with her some of the jewelry and money when she returned home, and this the priest has of course recovered. When Mary took her second departure, she had very little with her in the way of funds.

ARMOR PLANT APPROVEDSenate For a Second Time Votes $11,000,000 Measure.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—For the second time during this session the Senate yesterday voted to establish a government armor plant at a cost of $11,000,000. As before, Senators Oliver and Penrose led the fight against the proposal.
Senator Oliver's motion to strike from the naval appropriation bill the provision for the armor plant was defeated, 51 to 17. Republicans voted with the Democrats and Senator Taggart of Indiana voted with the Republicans.
The Oliver amendment to defer erection of the plant until an investigation into the cost of manufacture of armor by the Federal Trade Commission and to have the commission fix "fair and reasonable price," was defeated, 49 to 16.

WANT U. S. BUYERSAustralians Not Pleased With the Embargo on Wool.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Australia's embargo on wool exports to countries other than the Allies will not injure American manufacturers unless it is extended into September, when the season's principal sales are held. In the opinion of Department of Commerce officials. So far the embargo has applied only to off season sales of recent date, while in the past year the United States has taken 23 per cent of the island's total wool output.

The embargo ordered from London at first was directed against all countries outside the empire. The Australian government, it is declared, wants American buyers in the market.

FRICK VETERANS ARE AT IDLEWILD*Hold Their Annual Outing With an Attendance of 1,500; Have Fine Day.

Between 1,500 employees and former employees of the H. C. Frick Coke Company, with their friends and relatives, are picnicking today at Idlewild Park. This is the 10th annual outing of the Frick Veterans' Association but the outing is not limited to members, as hundreds of active Frick men and their friends are always present.

A special train was run over the Pennsylvania railroad leaving Uniontown at 7.40 o'clock and picking up picnickers at all stations enroute. A special delegation boarded the special here. Another special took those in the Scottsdale region. Many others went by automobile.

An interesting program was conducted at the park and free coffee, ice cream and lemonade were served to all. Because of heavy business, work at the coke plants was not suspended this year.

A few of those from this section who attended were Mr. and Mrs. James Doyle, Mrs. Frank Helton and son, Michael Harley Helton, Mr. and Mrs.
R. C. Lyon, George Funcher, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Tornay, Mr. and Mrs. W. J.

STORM IS RAGINGIt is Now Centered 200 Miles Off the Carolina Coast.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—The tropical storm making its way up the Atlantic coast from the West Indies apparently was centered this morning at about 200 miles off the North Carolina coast.

Very little information had reached the Weather Bureau this morning concerning its intensity. The only reports were by radio from ships at sea.
Latest dispatches told of winds with a velocity of 64 miles an hour, but these were from the edges of the disturbance.

ASHEVILLE, July 20.—The list of deaths from Sunday's flood in five southeastern states, which has been constantly growing as communication was restored, stood at 73 today with nine persons still reported missing.

Most of the deaths have been in Western North Carolina and investigators returning yesterday from isolated mountain hamlets brought reports that raised the death toll.

POSTMASTERS ELECTOld Corps Chosen to Control Organization; Name Changed.

officers and the adoption of a constitution today practically concluded business of the National Association of Postmasters' 15th annual convention.

officers will attend a banquet tonight.

Eugene S. Shannon of Nashville, Tenn., secretary; and Frank C. Seitz of Harrisburg, Pa., treasurer, all were dential Postmasters of the United States—was provided in the new constitution adopted.

PROHIBS SQUABBLE.Anti-Catholic Declaration Causes Bitter Debate in Committee.

ST. PAUL, July 20.—Whether the arrival of William Sulzer at the national prohibition convention here today could rally enough delegates to his support to defeat J. Frank Hanley of Indiana for the Presidential nomination was the question that predominated virtually every discussion before the convention was called to order this morning.

An effort to inject an anti-Catholic declaration into the prohibition platform caused the resolutions committee to go into executive session while a bitter debate waged.

Plemons Quit Jobs.

BOY KILLED, TWO HURT IN RUNAWAY
ON A BITNER HILL*Earl Dagostino Succumbs to His Injuries in Uniontown Hospital.*TWO ESCAPE WITH SCRATCHES*Wagon With Moving Starts Down Steep Grade When Backstrap Breaks and Overturns When Horse is Guided Into a Ditch; Victim Killed.

Earl Dagostino, five years old, was fatally injured, and his father, Alfonso Dagostino, and a brother, James Da-gostino, 16 years old, were slightly injured in a runaway which occurred about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon on a hill near Bitner. Sandy Dagostino, 6 years old, son of Alfonso Dagostino, and Nick Dagostino, 20 years old, a brother of Alfonso, were also occupants of the wagon, escaped injury.

Alfonso Dagostino conducts a store at Elm Grove and yesterday afternoon while hauling a moving, a wheel came off the wagon. Just after he had transformed the household goods to another wagon and started down the hill, a backstrap broke and the horse "took fright." It commenced to kick and run down the hill. In order to stop the frightened animal Mr. Dagostino drove the wagon into a ditch.

Earl Dagostino was carried into a farm house near by and on the arrival of a physician it was discovered that the child was suffering from a fractured skull, caused by being kicked by the horse. He was removed to the Uniontown hospital, where death resulted at 1 o'clock this morning.
The body was taken charge of by Funeral Director J. L. Sander. The funeral will take place tomorrow from the family residence at Elm Grove.

The father and his son James were kicked on the arm. Sandy Dagostino remained in the wagon and was uninjured. To avoid injury Nick Dagostino jumped from the wagon.

SEE AUTO ACCIDENTLocal Man Passes Scene of Mischap Which Cost One Life.

One man was killed and another was seriously hurt when an automobile skidded and overturned on the road near Irwin about 6 o'clock last evening. Jasper B. Hall, a drug clerk at Jeannette, aged 24 years, was crushed to death and his companion, Roy Kistler, 24, of Irwin, suffered a fractured collar bone and bruises.

E. W. Horner of Connellsville and C. E. Long of Pittsburgh, who were traveling along the same road came up a short time after the accident. Hall was lying on the road with his head badly crushed. He had been instantly killed. Other automobilists had summoned aid and the injured man was taken to the Westmoreland Hospital at Greensburg. Hall was taken to his home in Jeannette.

TRY NEW PLAN.Suffragists Will Have Booths at All the County Fairs.

The state suffrage organization has approved a plan to secure gaily colored circus tents to be used at the various county fairs of the state during the summer and fall, to further the campaign for "Votes for Women."

Last year the suffragists followed this plan but not on such an extensive scale. The Fawcett workers will have an even more pretentious booth at the Dawson fair in September.

BACK HOME AGAIN.Postmaster McGinnis Returns from Postmasters' National Convention.

Postmaster W. D. McGinnis returned this morning from Washington, where he attended the session of the National Postmasters' Association convention. There were 700 presidential postmasters in attendance, 110 of whom were from Pennsylvania.

BURLESON "EXPLAINS."Gets Busy in Effort to Justify Removal of Postmaster McNeil.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Postmaster General Burleson issued a statement today explaining his reason for dismissing Dr. George W. McNeil as postmaster at Pittsburgh.
He said the decision to appoint a new postmaster was reached solely because Dr. McNeil ignored communications from the department and failed to make organization changes ordered in connection with installing the two division plan in the Pittsburgh office.

Seeks a Divorce.
Arthur E. Thomas of South Connellsville today filed suit for divorce from Ola Thomas, on the ground of cruel and barbarous treatment. They were married at Markleysburg on December 9, 1909.

Lawrence Cuneo of Dunbar has purchased a Chalmers touring car from the Connellsville Garage.

HEAR 'EM SQUEAL WHEN HIGBEE PUTS UP AUTO ORDINANCE

Wait until City Solicitor Higbee offers his new automobile ordinance and then hear every driver of a car in the city send up a howl of protest that will be heard even above the din of their open cutouts.
The city solicitor proposes to make each machine come to a full stop at each street crossing.
Autos have been unpopular with the solicitor since South Pittsburg street became a speedway.

COPS SPOTTING
AUTO SPEEDERS*They Visit South Side and Take Numbers of Reckless Drivers; Arrests Coming.

That the campaign against automobile speeders has at last gotten under way is shown by the actions of the police last night. Several cops were sent to the South Side and scoured the names and license numbers of speeders there. Chief Rottler says that arrests will be made today.

Ever since South Pittsburgh street was paved, incautious automobilists have made a speedway of it. Crawford avenue, too, has been turned into a racing ground, and a number of other South Side streets are being utilized for this purpose.

The cops last night were successful in securing evidence against a number of automobilists for violating the speed laws. The penalties to be imposed will be a warning to other drivers inclined toward fast running, the chief says. The letter of the law will have to be adhered to, strictly hereafter, and running faster than the speed laws allow will not be tolerated.

Last night's activities are only a part of the campaign against speeding recently inaugurated by the police.
The idea of getting a motorcycle cop to see that the speed kings do not operate on city streets has gained some favor.

About That Date.

The finding of the viewers in the condemnation proceedings of school Board against the Freed, Showman and Soloman properties for a new high school site, will be announced about August 1.

Headings before the viewers were concluded yesterday in Uniontown after dozens of witnesses subpoenaed by the property owners and by School Board had submitted widely divergent opinions as to the worth of the various properties. The price which the board is to pay for the three properties is now entirely up to Viewers Munson, Binn and Ellis.

Contractor George Schenck of Butler is in town today overseeing day agreed to furnish safety gates at three dangerous crossings in Uniontown and to protect all other crossings with bells or other warning signals.

The gates will be at the Main street, Gallatin avenue and East Fayette street crossings. Four safety gates had been demanded by the city council and representatives came with a proposition to build two. A compromise of three was effected and it is believed this will be ratified by the railroad company when taken to Baltimore for approval.

STRIKE THREATENS.Street Laborers Make Demand for Higher Wages.

Street Commissioner William Mc-Cormick's force has threatened to go on strike for more wages. The men, according to a city official, are dissatisfied, and think that their work is worth more than they are getting for it. They say they will quit on Monday unless promises of better pay are forthcoming.

COP TO RESIGN.Patrolman Coughenour Will Quit Force to Work for Brewery.

Aaron Coughenour, of the local police force, is preparing to resign his position to accept another job.
Coughenour will become brewer at

CAMBRIA CAN'T COLLECT

Because the Pennsylvania Railroad Made Mistakes in Tariffs.

An order issued by the Public Service Commission refuses to permit the Cambria Steel Company to waive collection of money due to it because of mistakes in publication of tariffs by the Pennsylvania railroad. The charges were claimed because of rates collected in transporting certain commodities to the plant of the steel company at Morrellville, at higher figures than charged for transportation to Johnstown.

It is found that in issuing new tariffs the railroad omitted to include an interchange charge and shipments were made under the impression that former rates were in force. The commission says in regard to the petition to waive that it can not do so. The order is that the railroad collect and also orders that it pay damages amounting to $25,163.49, the steel company receiving the difference.

NEW ORE RECORDS

June Shipments May's Shipments by More than 1,000,000 Tons.

Ore shipments for May on the Great Lakes, which established a new record for monthly shipments, were surpassed by over 1,000,000 tons in June. The figures for the two months being 8,412,580 tons in May and 9,507,572 tons in June, says The Daily Iron Trade.

The movement to July 1 amounts to the immense total of 19,515,587 tons, compared with 19,155, or 70.36 per cent. The movement to date indicates that 55,000,000 tons could be moved during the season unless strikes or other events interfere.

The banner year in the history of the Lake Superior ore trade was 1913, when the total ore movement amounted to 49,070,478 tons.

DUNBAR BOARD WILL PICK SITE

Two Locations Are Proposed for the New $14,000 High School Building.

The School Board of Dunbar will make definite decision next Monday night as to a location for its proposed new $14,000 high school building. Two sites are up for consideration, the lot opposite the present brick school, owned by the McFarland estate, and a lot owned by the district on the other side of the town near where the present frame grade school is located.

The new building will be a four room brick building, modern in every particular and calculated to take care of the needs of the district for many years to come. The contract has been awarded to W. F. Crowe & Son of Dunbar and work will begin as soon as the board decides where it will be located. John H. Harmon of Uniontown is the architect.

The new building was made possible when the electors of the borough approved a bond issue of $25,000 for a new school. Negotiations are now on for the sale of the issue.

Rev. Holzer's Lecture Heard by Large House at Lutheran Church.

Rev. Armin A. Holzer's address on "The Second Coming of the Lord Jesus" in Trinity Lutheran Church last night was heard by a congregation that filled the church. The speaker handled the theme in a sane and convincing manner, holding the interest of his hearers for an hour and a half. Mr. Holzer believes in a personal coming of Christ and he said that the world would never enjoy Peace without the personal rule of the Prince of Peace. Tonight the subject is "From the Synagogue to the Cross," which tells the story of Mr. Holzer's conversion.

The last Bible conference will be held Friday night. It will take the form of an illustrated lecture on the subject, "The Jewish Passover to the Light of the Christian Communion."

MOUNT PLEASANT, July 20.—On Tuesday night while the family of L. Levinson was at the free show in the Jordan plan of lots they did not think it necessary to note that a man had crawled through a hole in the screen door. Some boys who were playing in front of H. S. Foust's grocery store called the attention of Mrs. H. S. Foust to the fact that a man had crawled through a hole in the screen door. Mrs. Foust, shouting for the police, ran to the Levinson home and was unable to find any person in the house. Whether the man was in hiding and got out later or whether he went down and out the coal chute in the cellar, they were unable to tell, but he did not have time to take anything. The children who saw the man were so badly frightened they could furnish no description of him.

MILLIONS FOR THE MILLS IN RUSSIAN RAIL ORDERS

Manufacturers Expect a Profit of $11,000,000 and the Railroads $1,000,000 in Freight.

Out of huge contracts just closed in this country by the Russian government for steel rails, the steel companies stand to clear a profit of $11,000,000 on the manufacture and railroads about $1,000,000 in transporting the finished rails to tidewater.

The business involved is understood to comprise 425,000 tons of 87½ pound rails at $52 per ton, f. o. b. cars at New York. Thus the total looks up in excess of $22,000,000. Pennsylvania mills get the bulk of this business, which is an amount nearly one-tenth of the annual capacity of the rail mills of the country.

The business divides, as is understood, 150,000 tons to the Midvale Steel & Ordnance Company to be rolled by the Cambria Steel Company at Johnstown; full capacity for its rail mill, 150,000 tons to the Steel Corporation which will manufacture the rails at Pittsburgh; 75,000 tons to the Lackawanna Steel Company, which has a plant at Buffalo, and 50,000 tons to the Bethlehem Steel Company. That concern is likely to manufacture the rails at its recently acquired plant at Sparrows Point and so save freight rates.

The present freight rate on steel rails from Pittsburgh and Buffalo to New York is $1.84 per ton, but after October 1 it becomes $2.70. Deliveries of rails under these Russian orders are to be completed in the first half of next year. It is agreed that with all manufacturing and freight costs covered the steel companies will clear a profit not less than $25 per ton. Prices for rails in American railroads are now $33 per ton for Bessemer and $35 for open hearth, to compare with the mill price of about $49, which Russia is to pay for a huge tonnage.

Songs on the Top Wave of Popularity

THRILLING patriotic ensembles like "Young America—We're Strong For You" and "We'll Never Let the Old Flag Fall"; hits that are hits, like Al Jolson's singing of "I Sent My Wife to the Thousand Isles"; and comic and sentimental song successes like "I've Got a Sweet Tooth Bothering Me" from Lew Fields' latest show "Step This Way" and "Songs We Used to Sing in Dixieland," a Remick song-gem that is sweeping the country.

Music of a very different sort is Casals' marvelous handling of the 'cello in Saint-Saens' "Allegro Appassionato" and Haydn's "Minuet in C Major."

Also in the August List

Kathleen Parlow's inspired playing of two brilliant violin compositions by Kreisler and Svendsen, Graveure's inspired rendering of two beautiful old-time hymns and Rother's great basso in the immortal anthem "La Marseillaise," rank quite as high in artistic interest. As examples of another side of the month's list, here are:

Varied and charming is the balance of the list: eight rhythmic dances; the Tartar Ballet from "Prince Igor"; (a veritable orchestral triumph) violin gems, banjo solos, instrumental trios; vocal choruses, quartets and solos; novelties on the harp, gypsy cimbale and Hawaiian guitar. Two Shakespearean orations add further novelty to this extensive and entertaining list—a list that you'll enjoy hearing at your dealer's.

THURSDAY EVENING, JULY 20, 1916.

THE COAL RATE CASE.

In their contentions for the Pittsburgh district coal rate, the Conneltsville merchant coke operators have made out a strong case; strong, not only because of a systematic and thorough preparation, but strong by reason of the inherent justice of the claims. It is strong, because of the limitations the Conneltsville operators themselves have placed upon their demands. They do not seek not a differential like that enjoyed by the Greenburg and Latrobe operators; they ask merely that they be allowed to share on an equal footing in the markets where coal from the several districts of southwestern Pennsylvania finds consumers.

The Conneltsville coke operators seek to conserve their own investments, stabilize the industry and insure a steady and profitable traffic to the railroads serving the coal fields. The fair minded way in which their case has been presented, and the concessions which are made to other interests, are evidences of a willingness to give and take on a proposition which so vitally concerns the whole fueling trade of southwestern Pennsylvania, and it will not doubt be considered in their favor in the final adjudication of their claims.

This is a critical period in the coal and coke industry of this section, and scarcely less so in the transportation interests which serve the territory. The significance of the situation has been clearly brought to the attention of the Interstate Commerce Commission in the hearing just had and it is hoped that body will broadly consider the problem and give due weight to the factors that make for a solution of the coal rate problems generally, such as short as well as the well balanced and profitable development of the industry in the several geographical subdivisions of the bituminous areas of Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky.

The new freight rate district which the Conneltsville operators suggested be formed, through the consolidation of the Pittsburgh, Westmoreland, Greensburg and part of the Latrobe districts, seems to be a logical grouping in the light of the evolution in the coke trade which the by-product coke oven is bringing about.

The proposed new Pittsburgh district is compact and contiguous; it is closely related geologically and geographically; the coal produced from it is adapted to by-product uses, and there is apparently no valid reason why all parts of the area should not have exactly the same advantages and opportunities in reaching the consumer markets, in so far as the transportation charges are concerned.

THE INTERESTED ARGUMENT.

The Vulturine argument in the Thompson case cannot be said to have discovered anything new or startling concerning the financial or legal status of the Thompson receivership. The plea of the great New York lawyer was a mixture of good law and bad suspicion. He pointed out that the common pleas courts were well established in their equity jurisdictions, and declared that the Fayette county court was an exception to the rule, but he insinuated that the attack upon the receivership was due to an ulterior motive. In plain English the insinuation is that somewhere in the Thompson case lands and is trying to force them to sale for the purpose of buying them at a sacrifice. In this connection Attorney Untermeyer said:

I have never before heard of anyone in a court of justice, and certainly not in a court of equity, in which a man comes into court and is unable to explain how his interests are to be promoted though he asks the court to take action in his behalf.

And yet I have tried to find some excuse for this proceeding. Here we have the phenomenal and unbounded situation of 1,000 creditors actually getting together to save the property and the person stepping in and trying to destroy it with no apparent benefit to himself.

What can be the purpose of this creditor in trying to bring down the rate upon the head of everybody including himself? Is it possible that some interest in the property and the person is very anxious to get hold of the property of a sacrifice? One thing we do know and that is that the creditor is not receiving anything in return for his action.

Attorney Untermeyer is not the only suspicious person having to do or say with the Thompson case. The Uniontown Standard is obsessed with the notion that the people who are trying to conserve the Thompson estate are not dealing fairly with the creditors and the public. It has its suspicions that the talk about furnishing $200,000 for the purpose of paying off the secured claims is all invention. In this connection it says:

As far back as 1914 a very good definite promise was made that a loan of $200,000 would be secured.

and relief extended. June came and so soon. Then when the Creditors Committee was formed there were other promises made; so far, nothing but the promises has been produced.

Early last March the Creditors Committee announced with a flourish of trumpets that $200,000 of the unsecured claims had been turned into the Creditors Committee. This was magnificent, in view of the fact that the managers announced that they would be satisfied with $750,000 in the view of this fact, as well as the further fact that $200,000 had been made and a set of New York auditors had overruled and nullified the more tangible than promises has been produced.

The longer these taxes remain unpaid, the more will the secured creditors feel that they are jeopardizing their claims by deferring judgment and execution. It is a strange thing that the only money dollar estate presumed to have assets of more than twice its liabilities, should be impeded through failure to pay taxes amounting to less than $200,000, not to speak of interest and other carrying charges.

There is no desire on the part of the Standard to embarrass Mr. Thompson, the great receiver, or any one who has volunteered to aid in the extinction of the estate from the chaos into which it was plunged through the crash of January, 1915, but a desire to report for the right of the unsecured creditors many of whom are widows and orphans, deserves that the promoters of this liquidation obtain from further promises and they are able to produce the money. After this, it is money and money alone that will talk with any degree of conviction.

Some allowance should perhaps be made for this outburst of The Standard, in view of its well known prejudice against Editor Allen Foster Cooper of the Uniontown Herald, who has been prominently identified with the plans to conserve the Thompson estate and whose paper has made many of the promises which remain unredempted. In the interest of fairness, however, The Courier presents both sides of the matter, and indulges the hope that the policy of conservation may be protected so long as it is in the interest of protection to the creditors as a body.

THE VULTURINE EYE.

An organization of Wilson appointees grouped under the imposing but more or less deceptive title of The National Association of Postmasters, has been holding a convention right at the fountain head of Progressive Democracy in Washington. While a wide range of topics relating to postal service problems have been publicly discussed, it has been impossible to really consider the subjects, purposes, intents and inspirations of the gathering.

It is there for politics, which fact needs no more convincing proof than the action of the Administration in humiliating and deposing Postmaster McNeil of Pittsburgh, an attendant at the gathering and the author of an address dealing with some of the most vital matters relating to the improvement of postal service in large cities. Because he has had the honor, old fashioned Democratic notion that "a public office is a public trust," and that he was administering his charge along the lines established by Colonel "Billy" Davis, his efficient predecessor, instead of buying himself with political patronage, the rump-upped charge that he had not inaugurated certain office methods recommended by his superior in Washington, was made against him and he was unconceringly removed and the brother of Colonel Guffy appointed in his stead.

With no impressive reminder of their dependence upon the will of the chief executive for their tenure of office, there is little wonder that there were digressions into the realm of politics. Postmaster Weaver of Oklahoma City concluded an address with an earnest admonition concerning the paramount duty of every member of the association, "Go home, my fellow postmasters," he passionately implored, "and remember that the greatest good to all the people of all the nations of this earth is the re-election, thank God, of Woodrow Wilson."

With great enthusiasm and of one accord the "fellow postmasters," all appointed under the present administration, rose to their feet and cheered the speaker wildly. President Selph, boldly chanting the disclaimer of the creator of the body over which he presided, rapped for order:

"I must insist that speakers confine themselves to the subject," he said. Fearing lest he had ventured too far in an attempt to suppress this outburst, the speaker added somewhat apologetically: "I am satisfied with what was said, but this is a convention of postmasters, and sitting in a tree somewhere is the outrageous eye of the enemy, and if we don't confine ourselves, we'll be criticised. Of course it will be unjust criticism, but we can't afford to have it."

The Vulturine Eye which is on this association of pie-eaters in the eye of Chairman Vance McCormick, and if the postmasters do not thank God, praise Wilson and promote Progressive Democracy they will feel the claws of the Democratic organization. The fate of Postmaster McNeil teaches that when a party's life is at hazard its postmasters have no time to think of the Public Service.

"Failure to co-operate with the Postoffice Department" is another name for failure to co-operate with the managers of the Thompson estate, and the result is getting fired from office. Wilson's Democracy may be Progressive, but its Politics are very Traditional.

Rippling Rhymes

JAMES J. HILL.

Jim Hill is gone to his repose, out where the weeping willow grows. While on this earth he asked to rest, this simple burial he desired. His years he strove and fought, by which he planned, by day he wrought. Men make to say, "Wherever he goes, he makes things blossom as he goes." He carried on a boat, but sailing men were not his boast. His armies stormed no fort or town, and tore no famed cathedral down, and where his mighty legions swept, no widowed woman wept and wail. It's all good to contemplate Jim Hill, the general who did not kill, and now that the world is mourning him, let us all be better than fifty thousand years of war. His monument the whole Northwest.

Jersey City

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Swank."

Jersey City is a large region lying west of New York City, according to the geographers. It is separated from New York by the Hudson River and about 1,000 through trains, and is rumored to be peopled by vast numbers of inhabitants who have attained a high degree of civilization, being street-car photographers and safety razor men of great finery. Little is actually known of Jersey City beyond these uncollected facts. Native of the place who escape to New York are very reticent about alluding to it and usually profess to have been there for a few well-known places. Explorers from New York have occasionally penetrated into Jersey City as far as the police court, but have brought back little except tales of great hardships. In 1905 a New York man got off a Pennsylvania railroad night train in Jersey City by mistake and stayed all night because there was no ferry at that time.

Swam the river because there was no ferry.

He escaped safely but his hair turned white during the trip, and the Pennsylvania railroad afterward altered its route and tunneled through to the north exposed regions, consisting mostly of smokestacks.

The Geographical Society of New York has offered a medal to the first member who will explore and report on Jersey City and as soon as the expedition at present exploring Patagonia and Pimlico returns, an effort will be made to accomplish this feat. Owing to the entire dearth of tobacco, gunpowder and other necessities of New York life, however, great hardships are sure to be encountered and the police may prevent the rash attempt.

THIN MEN AND WOMEN

Here's a Safe and Easy Way by Which You May Gain 10 Pounds or More of Solid, Healthy, Permanent Flesh.

Thin, nervous, undeveloped men and women everywhere are heard to say, "I can't understand why I do not get fat. I eat plenty of good nourishing food." The reason is just this: You cannot get fat, no matter how much you eat, unless your digestive organs assimilate the fat-making elements of your food instead of passing them out through the body as waste.

What is needed is a means of gently urging the assimilative functions of the stomach and intestines to absorb the oils and fats and hand them over to the blood, where they may reach the starved, shrunken, run-down tissues and build them up. This thin person's body is like a dry sponge—eager and hungry for the fatty materials of which it is being deprived by the failure of the alimentary canal to take them from the food. A splendid way of working to overcome this sinful waste of flesh building elements and to stop the leakage of fats is to try Sargol, the famous flesh building agent that has been so widely sold in America in recent years. Take a little Sargol tablet with every meal and see if your cheeks don't quickly fill out and rolls of firm, healthy flesh form over your body, covering each bony angle and projecting point. All good druggists have Sargol or can get it from their wholesalers, and will refund your money if you are not satisfied with the gain in weight it produces as stated on the guarantee in each large package. It is inexpensive, easy to take and highly efficient.

NOTE—Sargol is recommended only as a flesh builder and while excellent results in cases of nervous indigestion, etc., have been reported, care should be taken about using it unless a gain of weight is desired.—Adv.

Morford Guiber, who is in military training camp at Plattsburg, N. Y., writes an entertaining letter to his parents, Dr. and Mrs. H. B. Guiber in which he expresses himself well pleased with the military training he is getting there under the instruction of United States regular army officers. He has been made a sergeant of infantry. There are 25,000 in training in that camp. The training is no child's play as some that want there thought it would be. They are drilled from early morning until night. The boys tire of it and quit. One such in Morford's company was given a ride on a rail and booted out of camp.

M'NEIL SANDBAGGED TO MAKE A JOB FOR GUFFEY'S BROTHER

Pittsburg Postoffice Squabble Another Lunge At-tor Fork.

IS OUSTED ON FLIMSY PRETEXT

Dr. McNeill's Efficiency Unquestioned But He Refused to Puddle Jobs for Palmer and McCormick; Then, Chairman's Kin Wanted the Place.

Special to The Courier.

PITTSBURG, July 20.—Alexander S. Guffey, brother of the Democratic county chairman, is to be Pittsburg's new postmaster. His appointment was really made before Dr. George W.
McNeill was removed, and will probably be confirmed by the Senate today.

The bid to oust McNeill on the allegation that he had failed to "cooperate" with officials of the department at Washington, and to outstrip the county chairman's brother into position is alleged to have been worked out by the job-hunting politicians and the department officials with it.
McNeill's case, as now appears, with masterful skill.

It was planned, declare Dr. McNeill's friends, to keep the whole matter a secret between the Democratic machine leaders in Pennsylvania demanding the scalp of the postmaster and a political reward for Chairman Guffey's kinsman and the department officials of the Wilson administration, so that the removal of Dr. McNeill would not be connected with the appointment of Alexander Guffey, but been made.

The obvious scheme here was to prevent the suggestion of any other name than that of Mr. Guffey and to forestall the bringing of any pressure to bear upon President Wilson to veto the firing of Dr. McNeill.

The announcement that McNeill had actually been removed for contumacious the political aims of the Democratic longer in the county and state, however, caused a flood of telegrams to go forth yesterday. Many of the well-known Democrats here sent long messages.

The victory of Joseph F. Guffey in the recent primary fight for the Democratic county chairmanship, probably had a lot to do with his ability to secure the ousting of McNeill and the placing of his brother. With all the leverage he was able to exert in other quarters Pennsylvania appointive through the Democratic state machine, prior to his selection as chairman, he was unable to realize his desire that his brother should have this particular place, but protestingly agreed to Mc-Neill as a compromise. On the heels of his election to the local chairmanship came the appointment of his friend Vance McCormick as chairman of the national committee. Supplementing by As Mitchell Palmer, their demand upon the administration seems to have been healed without question.

Across the rank and file of the Democracy here there were varying opinions. While even the Palmer-Guffey element believed that Dr. McNeill may have made a mistake in point blank in refusing all of the political demands made upon him by the Democratic bosses, they believed it a worse mistake for the administration to take such drastic action at this critical period of a national campaign. If any tangible reason could be given for the firing of Dr. McNeill—it could be justified in any way—then it was all right to resort to the stern party discipline that the present state organization has resorted to, they said, but without apparent justification and coming so closely on the removal of H. H. Wilson as marshal for similar reasons, they thought the whole procedure very injudicious.

"The new postmaster probably does not need the job so badly that he couldn't have waited until after the November election," said one old Democrat, interested in the party's continued ascendancy.

So far as anyone except the few within the local Wilson breastworks either holding or hoping to get a federal job could see, there was no reason for the removal of Dr. McNeill except that those who sought his official scalp had the power to get it.

So far as the official excuse that Mc-Neill had been removed because he failed to put the "two-divisions" scheme of conducting the local business into operation is concerned, it was pointed out at the Federal Building yesterday that these recommendations from Washington had been made during the local administration of former Postmaster W. H. Davis, but never executed for various reasons that were well understood at Washington; though the then postmaster was in full accord with the suggestions and wanted to carry them out.

SOISSON THEATRE.

"THE IRON CLAW."—The popular actress, Pearl White, appears at the Soisson Theatre today in the thrilling serial, "The Iron Claw." In this episode "The Iron Claw" still holds his vow to revenge himself upon Hugh Golden by striking at his daughter, Margery. He secures a position in a lumber factory where Dan O'Mara, a woodworker, engaged in an unlawful scheme to provide for his sick wife.
Under threat of exposure Dan lures Margery to the factory. It is in the hulce room of the factory that the big thrill of this episode occurs, for here Legar throws Margery into the leg-mangle, slushway, and the girl seems certain to meet her death in the terrible machinery but the Laughing Mask saves her and removes all evidence of the guilt from Dan. "Double-Crossing the Dean," is a two reel New-York feature comedy with Eddie Lyons and Leo Moran. It is one of Al Charles's boarding school comedies in which the soda fountain clerks succeed in seeing their sweethearts despite the protestations of the dean.
There's a lot of fun in these two reels.
"The River Goddess." In an impudent drama with Matt Moore and Jane Gail.
Two men who are about to drown themselves tell their story of how they were jilted. They discover they have jilted the same girl and that they will not sacrifice their lives for her. "Any Youth," a Victor drama with Dorothy Phillips. This story is an allegorical fantasy, dealing with the eternal conflict between the better and baser self of the average human being. Tomorrow, the fourth serial

PARAMOUNT THEATRE.

"MOLLY MAKE BELIEVE"—A beautiful romance starring Marguerite Clark, the charming screen star, and Company D at Mount Gretna, are today's attractions at the Paramount.
The many thousands who have read Eleanor Hallowell Abbott's celebrated story, "Molly Make-Believe," will recognize at once that Marguerite Clark is ideally suited to play the role of the delightful little Molly, one of the most favorable characters in all fiction.
Though the delightful story is essentially romantic and comic in its main theme, there are some remarkably pathetic scenes and powerful dramatic incidents which combine to make the famous Players' Paramount Picture an exceptional photograph. It is very easy for those who have seen Marguerite Clark on the screen in her previous productions to imagine her teasing her indulgent grandmother, ordering her small brother around, the house, keeping the entire family agog by her refusal to stay at home. Inasmuch as the original story was woven entirely around a series of letters it may be well to explain that the film though still retaining the spirit of the book in its entirety, has constructed of the tale and introduced the comic and dramatic events in the life of Molly which preceded the action of the story, also the ideal film vehicle for Miss Clark. There is one jump in the throat scene, however, when Miss Clark, attired in her gaudy dancing costume tries to lighten the last moments of her little cripple friend by dancing by her bedside. Miss Clark is supported by Maubon Hamilton, Master Dick Gray, Helen Dahl, Gertrude Norman, J. W. Johnston and Ed-

CASTER'S BAND WILL PLAY AT SHADY GROVE ON SUNDAY

MISS ANNA GEORGE.

The Connellsville Military Band is to appear in its second concert of the season at Shady Grove on Sunday. The season at Shady Grove park, Sunday.
Miss Anna George of Everson will be the soloist. Director John E. Caster says that he never had a better band in fact that he now has a band of excellent soloists, every one a star in his line. As a conductor Caster is vigorous and picturesque without being unduly fantastic, and his control over the band is great, such precision and shading being unusual even in this day of good bands. Few leaders put the spirit and finish into popular music and lighter classics as Connellsville's young director and his band is one of the best civic assets of Fayette county's first city. Charlie Caputo, the Pittsburg leader, says it is the best amateur organization he ever heard of and both Dan and Joe Nirella see in the Connellsville band their nearest competitor for popular favor, and have frequently offered to engage many of its members for professional engagements. The constant association of the players during the summers they have been together has given them a perfection of ensemble and a beauty of style which cannot be taught by the professional band which depends upon hiring a new set of musicians for each engagement as is the case with many bands.

"Miss George is the young lady who created such a sensation when she sang with the Military Band at the last benefit concert. She is an Everson girl who has spent the last four years at the New England Conservatory of Music at Boston and has sung under William Braham and Mrs.
Lida Shaw Littlefield, two of America's foremost vocal teachers. She was a dramatic soprano voice of rare strength and flexibility and she deserves the enthusiastic praise the audience heaped upon her at the benefit concert. She produces her upper tones with perfect ease and with no diminution in quality. She has a delightfully sympathetic voice and her phrasing is wonderful. Her gracious personality endears her to her auditors as it did her teachers and no one who listens to her singing can but feel proud of the fact that a daughter of the land of coke and smoke has all the attributes of a great artist—a strong, fresh, flexible voice, and a stage presence altogether pleasing to look upon, charming in face, figure and movement."

CHAPTER XXI.

The Fight.

When at a very silent supper, washed our dishes methodically and walked up to town. The Bella Union was the largest of the three gambling houses, a log and canvas structure some forty feet long by perhaps twenty wide. A bar extended across one end, and the gaming tables were arranged down the middle. A dozen oil lamps with reflectors furnished illumination.

All five tables were doing a brisk business. When we passed at the door for a preliminary survey the bar was lined with drinkers, and groups of two and three were slowly sauntering here and there or conversing at the tops of their voices with many guffaws. The air was thick with tobacco smoke. Johnny stepped just inside the door, moved sideways and so stood with his back to the wall. His keen eyes went from group to group slowly, resting for a moment to turn on each of the five impassive gamblers and their lookouts, on the two bar-keepers and then one by one on the men with whom the place was crowded.

Following him, my glance recognized at a corner of the bar Danny Randall with five rough looking miners. He caught my eye and nodded. No one else appeared to notice us, though I imagined the noise of the place sank in once again at the first moment of our entrance.

"Jim," said Johnny to me quietly, "there's Danny Randall at the other end of the room. Go join him. I want you to leave me to play my own game."

I started to object. "Please do as I say," insisted Johnny. "I can take care of myself unless there's a general row. In that case all my friends are better together."

Without further protest I left him and edged my way to the group at the end of the bar. Randall nodded to me as I came up and motioned to the bar-keeper to set me out a glass, but said nothing. Ours was the only lot away from the gaming tables not talking. We sipped our drink and watched Johnny.

After surveying coolly the room Johnny advanced to the farther of the gaming tables and began to play. His back was toward the entrance. The game was roulette, and Johnny tossed down his bets methodically, studying with apparent absorption each shift of the wheel. To all appearance he was intent on the game and nothing else, and he talked and laughed with his neighbors and the dealer as though his spirit were quite carefree.

For ten minutes we watched. Then a huge figure appeared in the blackness of the doorway, slipped through and instantly to one side, so that his back was to the wall. Scarface Charley had arrived.

He surveyed the place as we had done, almost instantly caught sight of Johnny and immediately began to make his way across the room through the crowds of loungers. Johnny was laying a bet, bending over the table, joking with the impassive dealer, his back turned to the door, totally oblivious of his enemy's approach. I started forward, instantly realized the hopelessness of either getting quickly through that crowd or of making myself heard and leaped back, clutching the rail with both hands. Johnny was hesitating, his eyes hovering uncertainly about the marked squares of the layout, in doubt exactly where to bet. Scarface Charley shouldered his way through the loungers and reached the clear space immediately behind his unconscious victim. He stopped for an instant, squared his shoulders and took one step forward. Johnny dropped his chips on the felt layout, contemplated his foe for an instant and suddenly whirled on his heel in a lightning about face.

Although momentarily startled by this unexpected evidence that Johnny was not so far off guard as he had seemed, the desperate hand dropped swiftly to the butt of his pistol. At the same instant Johnny's arm snapped forward in the familiar motion of drawing from the sleeve. The motion started clean and smooth, but half through caught, dragged, balked. I gasped aloud, but had time for no more than that. Scarface Charley's revolver was already in the leap. Then at last Johnny's defender appeared, apparently as the result of a desperate effort. Almost with the motion it barked, and the big man whirled to the door, his pistol already at half raise, clattering away. The whole episode from the beginning occupied the space of two eye winks. Probably no one but myself and Danny Randall could have caught the slight hitch in Johnny's draw, and, indeed, I doubt if anybody saw whence he had snatched the derringer.

A complete silence fell. It could have lasted only an instant, but Johnny seized that instant.

"Has this man any friends here?" he asked clearly.

His head was back, and his snapping black eyes seemed to see everywhere at once.

No one answered or stirred. Johnny had the others perhaps too motionless, then deliberately turned back to the table.

"That's my bet on the even," said he. "Let her roll!"

The gambler lifted his face, white in the brilliant illumination directly over his head, and I thought to catch a flicker of something like admiration in his passionless eyes. Then with his left hand he spun the wheel.

The soft dull whir and tiny clicking of the ball as it rebounded from the metal grooves struck across the tense stillness. As though this was the releasing signal, a pair of activity burst forth. Men all talked at once. The other tables and the bar were deserted, and everybody crowded down toward the lower end of the room. Danny Randall and his friends rubbed determinedly to the center of disturbance. Some men were carrying out Scarface Charley. Others were talking excitedly. A little clear space surrounded the roulette table, at which as may be imagined, Johnny was now the only player. Quite methodically he laid three more bets.

"I think that's enough for now," he told the dealer pleasantly and turned away.

"Hello, Randall! Hello, Frank!" he greeted us. "I've just won three bets straight. Let's have a drink. Bring four friends," he told Randall.

We turned toward the bar, and was instantly made for us. Johnny poured himself a big drink of whiskey. A number of curious men, mere boys most of them, had crowded close after us and were staring at Johnny with a curiosity they made slight attempt to conceal. Johnny suddenly turned to them, holding high his whiskey in a hand as steady as a rock.

"Here's to crime, boys!" he said and drank it down at a gulp. Then he stood staring them uncompromisingly in the face until they had slunk away. He called for and drank another whiskey, then abruptly moved toward the door.

"I think I'll go 'fern in," said he. At the door he stopped.

"Good night," he said to Randall and his friends, who had followed us. "No, I am obliged to you," he replied to a suggestion, "but I need no escort," and he said it so firmly that all but Randall went back.

"I'm going to your camp with you, whether you need an escort or not," said the latter.

Without a word Johnny walked away down the street very straight. We hurried to catch up with him, and just as we did so he collapsed to the ground and was suddenly and violently sick. As I helped him to his feet I could feel that his arm was trembling violently.

"Lord, fellow! I'm ashamed," he gasped a little hysterically. "I didn't know I had so little nerve!"

"Nerve!" suddenly roared Danny Randall; "confound your confounded impudence! If I ever hear you say another word like that I'll put a bullet in you. It's the last act of my life for you to the greatest little chicken in this room, and I'll make you beg like a hound if you say you aren't!"

Johnny laughed a little uncertainly over this contradiction.

"Did I kill him?" he asked.

"No, worse luck; just bored him through the collarbone. That heavy little derringer ball knocked him out."

"I'm glad of that," said Johnny.

"Which I am not," stated Danny Randall, with emphasis. "You ought to have killed him."

"Thanks to you I wasn't killed myself. I couldn't have hoped to get the draw on him with my holster gun."

He is as quick as a snake.

"I thought you were going to bungle it," said Randall. "What was the matter?"

"Front sight caught at the edge of my sleeve. I had to tear it loose by main strength. I'm going to file it off. What's the use of a front sight at close range?"

I heaved a deep sigh.

"Well, I don't want ever to be so scared again," I confessed. "Will you tell me by all that's holy, why you turned your back on the door?"

"Well," said Johnny seriously, "I wanted to get him close to me. If I had shown him that I'd seen him when he first came in the door he'd have opened fire at once. And I'm a rotten shot. But I figured that if he thought I didn't see him he'd come across the room to me."

"But he nearly got you by surprise."

"Oh, no," said Johnny; "I saw him all the time. I got his reflection from the glass over that picture of the beautiful lady sitting on the whisky barrel. That's why I picked out that table."

"My son," cried Danny Randall delightedly, "you're a true sport. You've got a head, you have!"

"Well," said Johnny, "I figured I'd have to do something; I'm such a rotten shot."

We slept late the following morning and awoke tired, as though we had been on a long journey.

"Now," said Johnny when our after breakfast pipes had been lit, "we've got to get together. There's one important question before the house—who and what is Danny Randall?"

"I agree with you there," said I heartily.

We separated until noon. Johnny returned promptly at 12. He began at once "origin lost in mists of obscurity. First 'origin' in this country as a guide to a party of overland immigrants before the gold discovery. One of the original Bear Flag revolutionaries. Member of Fremont's raiders in the south. Shown up again at Sonoma and headed a dozen forays after the horse thieving Indians and half breeds in the San Joaquin. Seems now to follow the mines. Guaranteed the best shot with rifle or pistol in the state. Guaranteed the best counter and the quickest manners in the state. Very prominent and square in his profession. That's his entire history."

"What is his profession?" I asked.

"He runs the Bella Union."

"A gambler?" I cried, astonished.

"Just so, a square gambler."

I digested this in silence for a moment.

"Did you discover anything for your self?" I asked at last.

"Best job ever invented," said Johnny triumphantly, "at three o'clock a day, and I can't beat that at your beauty diggings."

"Yes," I urged.

"I invented it myself, too," went on Johnny proudly. "You remember what Randall or the doctor said about the robberies and the bodies of the drowned men floating? Well, every man carries his dirt around in a belt, because he dare not do anything else with it. I do myself, and so do you, and you'll agree that it weighs like the mischief. So I went to Randall and I suggested that we start an express service to get the stuff out of a bank with some good 'fer in San Francisco. He fell in with the idea in a minute. My first notion was that we take it right through to San Francisco ourselves, but he says he can make satisfactory arrangements to send it in from Sacramento. That's about sixty miles, and we'll call it a day's hard ride through this country, with a change of horses. So now I'm what you might call an express messenger—at three good ounces a day."

"But, son, he killed and robbed!" I cried.

Johnny's eyes were dancing.

"Think of the fun!" said he. "You're a rotten shot," I reminded him.

"I'm to practice under Danny Randall from now until the first trip."

"When is that?"

"Do you think we'll advertise the date? Of course I'd tell you Jim, but honestly I don't know yet."

CHAPTER XXII.

The Express Messenger.

A WEEK later Johnny rode up on a spotted and beautiful horse, proud as could be over his mount.

He confided to me that it was one of the express horses, that the first trip would be very soon and that if I desired to send out my own savings I could do so. I was glad to do this, even though the rates were high, and we easily persuaded Talk of the advisability. One of the express riders was a slight, dark youth whom I had never seen before. In the other I was surprised to recognize Old Hickory Pines. He told me his people had "squatted" not far from Sacramento, but that he had come up into the hills on summons by Danny Randall. The fact impressed me anew as to Randall's wide knowledge, for the Pines had not been long in the country.

The trip went through without incident. Johnny returned four days later aglow with the joy of that adventurous ride through the dark. He had added to his knowledge of the country. The first half dozen journeys were more or less secret, so that the express service did not become known to the general public. Then the news inevitably leaked out. Danny Randall thereupon openly received shipments and gave receipts at the Bella Union. It seemed to me only a matter of time before the express messengers should be waylaid for the treasure they carried.

I spoke to Randall about it one day.

"An Anglo or Mexican or Dick Tompkins were in this part of the country I'd agree with you," said he seriously, "but they are not, and there's nobody in this lot of cheap desperadoes around here that has the nerve. Those three boys have a big reputation as fighters, their horses are good, they constantly vary their route and their times of starting, and Johnny in especial has a foxy head on him."

"The weak point is the place they change horses," said I.

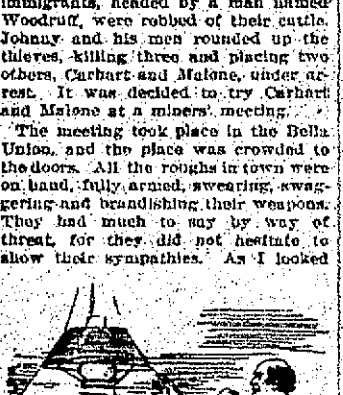

Randall looked at me quickly, as though surprised at that one day.

"Why, that's true," said he, "not a doubt of it. But I've got five armed men there to look after just that. And another thing, you must remember—they know that Danny Randall is running this show."

Certainly, thought I, Danny at least appreciates himself. And yet, after all, I do not think he in any way exaggerated the terror his name inspired.

About this time a party of overland immigrants, headed by a man named Woodruff, were robbed of their cattle. Johnny and his men rounded up the thieves, killing three and placing two others, Carhart and Malone, under arrest. It was decided to try Carhart and Malone at a miners' meeting.

The meeting took place in the Bella Union, and the place was crowded to the doors. All the roughs in town were on hand, fully armed, swearing, swaggering and brandishing their weapons. They had much to say by way of threat, for they did not hesitate to show their sympathies. As I looked upon their unexpected numbers and listened to their wild talk I must confess that my heart failed me. Though they had not the advantage in numbers, they knew each other, were prepared to work together, were, in general, desperately courageous and reckless, and inspired with a greatest confidence. The dozen miners on the other hand, were practically unknown to each other and, while brave enough and hardy enough, possessed neither the recklessness nor desperation of the others. I think our main weakness sprang from the selfish detachment that had prevented us from knowing whom to trust.

I am not going to describe that most turbulent afternoon. The details are unessential to the main point, which was our decision. Counsel was appointed by the court from among the numerous ex-lawyers. The man who took charge of the defense was from New York and had served some ten years in the profession before the gold fever took him. I happen to know that he was a most sober minded, steady individual, not at all in sympathy with the rougher elements but, like most of his ilk, he speedily became so intimately interested in playing his profession that he forgot utterly the justice of the case. He defended the lawless element with all the tricks at his command. For that reason Woodruff was prevented from testifying at all, except as to his ownership of the cattle, so that the effect of his pathetic story was lost. Dr. Rankin had no chance to appear.

We retired to Randall's little room to deliberate. Not a man of the twelve of us had the first doubt as to the guilt of the prisoners. We took a ballot. The result was eleven for acquittal and one vote for conviction. I had cast the one vote for conviction.

We argued the matter for three hours.

"There's no doubt the men are guilty," said one. "That isn't the question. The question is, dare we declare it?"

"It amounts to announcing our own death sentence," argued another. "Those fellows would stand together, but who of the lot would stand by us? Why, we don't even know for sure who would be with us."

This case, ought never to have been tried by a jury," complained a third bitterly. "It ought to have been tried in a miners' court, and if it hadn't been for those soft heads who were strong for doing things regularly instead of sensibly we'd have had it done that way."

"Well," said an older man gravely, "I agree to that. I am going to be governed in my decision not by the merits of the case, but by the fact that I have a family back in the states. I consider my obligation to them greater than to this community."

I reasoned with them for a long time, bringing to bear all the arguments I had heard advanced at various times during our discussions in Danny Randall's back room. At last, seeing I could in no manner shake their resolution, I gave in. After all, I could not blame them. The case was to them only one of cattle stealing. They had no chance to realize that it was anything more. Without solicitation on my part they agreed to keep secret my opposition to the verdict of acquittal.

Our decision was greeted by wild yells and the discharge of pistols on the part of the rough element. The meeting broke up informally and in confusion. It would have been useless for the presiding officer to have attempted to disperse the mob.

The mob broke through in mass to congratulate the prisoners. Immediately the barkeepers were overwhelmed with work. Here and there I could see a small group of the honest men talking low voiced, with many shakes of the head. Johnny, Old and Cal, who had attended with his arm slung up, had their heads together in a corner. Danny Randall, who, it will be remembered, had not appeared publicly in any way, stood at his customary corner of the bar watching all that was going on. His gamblers were preparing to reopen the suspended games.

After conferring together a moment the three express messengers made their way slowly across the room to the bar. Each had a gun, and what happened, but heard the sudden reverberations of several pistol shots. The lamps and glasses rattled with the concussion, the white smoke of the discharges eddied and rose. An immediate dead silence fell, except for the sounds made by the movements of those seeking safe places. Johnny and his two friends, shoulder to shoulder, backed slowly away toward the door.

DRUGLESS HEALING

Tells How Nerve Insulation Quickly Stops All Pain and Allays the Inflammation. Even Rheumatism, Sciatica and Neuritis Yield to Marvelous New Discovery.

The nerves of your body are like electric wires. They carry the nerve energy (neuro-electricity) which is generated in the brain, to all the cells and tissues. The nerve sheaths are insulated to resist a current of about 4-1,000 of a volt, as has been proven with the aid of Lord Kelvin's galvanometer, an instrument as sensitive and accurate as that for the first time, it is now possible to measure the strength of nerve currents.

It has been found that wherever acute inflammation occurs the insulation of the nerves is broken down, making it difficult, and often impossible for nature to heal the surrounding cells. Germs cannot live in healthy tissue; it is only through damaged cells that they thrive and spread. Obviously, therefore, the right way to successfully treat inflammatory disease is to quickly repair the damaged insulation, and enable nature to restore the diseased tissue to a healthy condition. Ion-o-lex Unguent does this.

Ion-o-lex Unguent is not a drug. It does not contain opiates or narcotics. Its action is entirely mechanical. Applied externally, it penetrates the tissues and surrounds the injured nerve sheaths with an insulating bath. Then the inflammation subsides and nature quickly repairs the nerve lesion—you are well. Don't suffer another minute. Just go to A. A. Clark and get a large jar of Ion-o-lex Unguent. It costs little use as directed and if you cannot say that it is the greatest means ever devised for conquering inflammation wherever it exists, your money will be cheerfully returned without a question. Adv.

Johnny and Old presented each two pistols at the group around the bar, while Cal, a revolver in his well-hand, swept the muzzle slowly from side to side. Nobody near the bar stirred. The express messengers backed to the door.

"Keep your heads inside," warned Johnny clearly. On the words they vanished.

Immediately pandemonium broke loose. The men along the bar immediately became very warlike, but none of those who brandished pistols tried to leave the building. From the swing and sway of the crowd and the babel of yells, oaths, threats and explanations I could make nothing. Danny Randall alone of all those in the room held his position unmoved. At least a clear way offered, so I went over to him.

"What's happened?" I shouted at him through the din.

Danny shrugged his shoulders. "They killed Carhart and Malone," Danny replied curtly.

Although for the moment held in check by the resolute front presented by these three boys, the rough element showed that it considered it had won a great victory and was now entitled to run the town. Members of the gang selected what goods they needed at any of the stores, making no pretense of payment. They swaggered boldly about the streets at all times, infected the better places, such as the Bella Union, elbowing aside insolently any inoffensive citizen who might be in their way and generally conducted themselves as though they owned the place. Robberies grew more frequent. The freighters were held up in broad daylight; rumors of returning miners being relieved of their dust drifted up from the lower country; mysterious disappearances increased in number. Hardly an attempt was made to conceal the fact that the organized gang that conducted these operations had its headquarters at Italian Bar. Strange men rode up in broad daylight, covered with red dust, to confer with Morton or one of the other resident blackguards. Mysteriously every desperado in the place began to lay fifty dollar octagonal slugs on the gaming tables, product of some lower country activity.

The camp soon had a concrete illustration of the opinion the roughs held of themselves. It was reported quietly among a few of us that several of our number had been "marked" by the desperadoes. Two of these were Joe Thompson, who had acted as counsel for the prosecution in the late trial, and Tom Cleveland, who had presided, and presided well, over the court. Thompson kept one of the stores, while Cleveland was proprietor of the hypocrite shop. No man there was made but we understood that somehow these men were to be put out of the way. Of course they were at once warned.

An Ancient Die.

In the museum at Athens is shown what is probably the only genuine antique die used for coinage that is now extant. It was found in Egypt in 1894 and consists of bronze, engraved with the owl that was stamped on Athenian tetradrachma pieces, which contained about as much silver as three-quarter dollars. The die is of scientific interest on account of the evidence it gives of the skill of the ancients 300 or 400 years before Christ in metallurgy. It contains about 22½ per cent of tin and nearly 70 per cent of copper. It is extremely hard, but at the same time possesses a certain malleability, due to the great purity of the copper and tin, which were carefully freed from all traces of lead and zinc to preserve the hardness and from arsenic and antimony to avoid brittleness.

Vernet in a Storm at Sea.

Vernet, the celebrated painter of sea pieces, eager in the study of nature, made several long voyages in his younger days in order to observe the various scenes which the changeful elements exhibit. In one of these excursions undertaken merely for the love of the art a most violent gale of wind arose, when Vernet, without attending to the perils with which he was surrounded, desired one of the sailors to lash him fast to some of the rigging. Soon after this request was granted the storm increased, attended with thunder and lightning, and with every circumstance that could add to the horror of the scene, and consternation and terror sat on every countenance; but in the young painter every emotion was lost in that of admiration, which so wholly engrossed his attention that he every now and then exclaimed in the most enthusiastic terms, "Good heavens, what a noble scene!"
